Local roofing company receives national recognition

A roofing company that has worked on several roofs in the Robertson County area has been designated as the national 2010 Contractor of the Year for Commercial Roofing in the November 2010 Issue of Roofing Contractor Magazine.

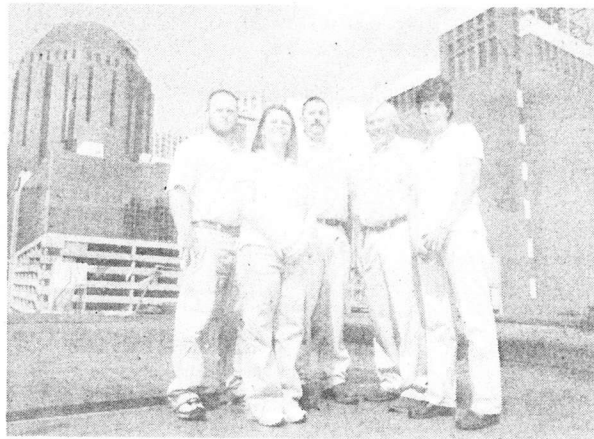

Nashville's Collier Roofing earned the recognition for quality workmanship, commitment to customers and dedication to employees with owners Jerry and Yvonne Collier, of Joelton and their son, Eric Collier of Ashland City.

Robertson County projects worked on by Collier Roofing include Bank of America, Belk, Big Lots, U.S. Tobacco, and the U.S. Post Office.

"We dedicate ourselves to always doing the right thing for our customers, our employees, and even our competitors," stated company Vice President Jerry Collier.

"We are so pleased to receive this national recognition," he said.

As a family business,

Eric Collier, Heather Collier, Greg Cannon, Jerry Collier and Yvonne Collier.

Collier said the family name and reputation are taken very seriously by the family members who run this business, who in addition to Jerry, Yvonne and Eric, include Heather Collier (Eric's wife) and Greg Cannon (Yvonne's brother).

With more than 40 employees and more than $5 million in revenue, Collier Roofing is the largest woman-owned minority commercial and industrial roofing contractor in Tennessee.

The company, which specializes in commercial and industrial roofing, has been listed by the Nashville Business Journal among the 25 largest woman-owned businesses in the Nashville market every year since 2003.
